SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT:

Supt. Testani said the convocation today was very positive and successful. He said he was particularly pleased to welcome back staff and teachers. The Covid-19 dashboard will be reset. Lizette Early, director of nursing, will be reporting data to the state this year.

The superintendent said the schools are opening to full capacity and full mitigation strategies will continue. He said the governor's executive order on vaccination impacts school boards. All staff members and contractors that come into school buildings to work will have to be fully vaccinated at some point in October, with one vaccine shot prior to September 27th. Those not fully vaccinated will be required to undergo weekly Covid testing on their own time and be responsible for the costs if they don't have insurance. There are exemptions for religious reasons or a physician's order, with weekly testing for those in that category.

In response to a question, Supt. Testani the governor's order will include those employed in after-school programs, interns, student teachers, substitute teachers, or anyone who works on a regular basis. The status of volunteers is not known yet.

In response to a question, the superintendent said he believed the vaccination rate of staff was about 60 percent previously, not including after-school personnel and contracted employees. He said there was a danger that personnel would have to be laid off or terminated. Human resources will be providing information to employees on the executive order.

In response to a question, Supt. Testani said he was sure the order would be challenged at the court level. Mr. Weldon said the order clearly states the board may not employ anyone who is not vaccinated. He said he agreed with the superintendent about the extent of uncharted territory.

Mr. Benejan said he did not agree with firing persons who did not take the vaccine. He said his son had to be hospitalized with a 102-degree fever shortly after being vaccinated and he is still in the hospital. He said he understood we have to follow the policy, but the staff works very hard and should not be fired for not being vaccinated.

In response to a question, the superintendent said the superintendents were informed last Thursday and it seems superintendents like the fact that there is clear direction statewide. He said it simplifies the process if all personnel have to be vaccinated.

Ms. Brown said a lot of parents were in favor of hybrid instruction, but now the delta variant is occurring among the vaccinated. Supt. Testani said the situation would be monitored closely by health authorities and superintendents. He noted the statistics showing the effectiveness of the vaccines compared to those unvaccinated. He said the positivity rate in the city of Bridgeport was only about four percent.

Ms. Brown said she believed a lot of the worry about vaccines was because those vaccinated were still able to contract the virus.

The superintendent said he believed the governor's priority was the education of children. He said the Pfizer vaccine received official FDA approval today.

Mr. Benejan said he understood the superintendent had to follow the rules, but Mr. Benejan said he had concern about the staff.

Mr. Weldon noted the order was only a few days old and may be revised at some point. He said it was likely there would be pushback on the governor's order. Supt. Testani said it was not expected that the district would have to administer the testing of unvaccinated personnel.

Mr. Benejan thanked Supt, Testani for his participation in the event distributing book bags and being there for the community and the children. He also thanked human resources, Lighthouse, adult education, PLTI and others. He said 500 book bags were distributed. He thanked staff members, including Dr. Morgan, for participating.
